I have arranged that Major Coon will go out to Area A-3 tomorrow or the next day where he will do a certain amount of instruction but primarily will be concerned with building up his physical condition. I have spoken to Colonel Missal who approves highly of this idea and who promises to keep his eye on Major Coon very closely. Major Coon also thinks that it is a fine idea and understands that no decision will be made as to his ultimate disposition until we are assured by Colonel Missal that physical and mental condition warrantes.

OF THE RESIDENCE AND ADDRESS.

Subject:

second by money excellent to rely

Major Carleton Coon

Dear Colonel Guenther:

I believe the subject officer is known to you as a result of your slight acquaintance with him in Algiers, and you are undoubtedly aware of his major accomplishments in the North African Theater prior to, during, and after the invasion.

We were delighted that you wanted him in the Middle East as it was both the General's and the writer's opinion that his experience under Colonel Eddy would be of immense value to your people in your operations in the Balkans.

Major Coon has had a good deal of experience in Albania, and in his professional capacity, is one of the outstanding anthropologists in this country. His record with GSS is such that combined with his previous Albanian experience, it is our belief that you can lean very heavily on him for operational work in the field. It is not the writer's belief that he chould be confined to any more duty at headquarters than is absolutely necessary.

Major Coon returned from the North African Theater on May 17th, had four weeks of much needed leave, and was then brought back into Washington SO Headquarters and has familiarized himself with structures, functions, etc. as will be helpful to you people in Cairo. Please feel free to call on him for any viewpoints in which you are interested, which pressure on us here has prevented our transmitting to you in written form.

Major Coon has posted himself on the characteristics, intended functions, etc. of such groups as the Kay Group and the Parachute Unit, and also the people we are sending who were prepared for the David Project, but who will be equally useful on other projects.

Major Coon, as you know, has done a good deal of work with the British SOE, and I believe he maintains a very pleasant reputation with them. He is personally acquainted with CD, and I believe his presence in your Theater will be helpful from this facet.

Kind regards and every good wish to you and the SO staff.

Sincerely yours,

H.A.B.

The applicant will be assigned to the Special Operations Branch of the Office of Strategic Services for overseas duty.

The applicant will, upon commissioning, be sent to the Near East Theater for special subversive and demolition work. July 3, 1943.

Dr. Carlton S. Coon,
American Legation,
Tangier.

Dear Dr. Coon:

The Honorable Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, in a telegram of June 22, 1943, makes reference to the gratification expressed by him on November 18 at the successful results of our policy in North Africa. At that time Mr. Hull states that the work performed by our Foreign Service in carrying out its appointed tasks as well as in maintaining our relations in the North African territories during a most difficult period in his opinion was outstanding. He asked that his deep appreciation of the faithful assistance and cooperation be conveyed to the personnel of our offices in Algiers, Tangier, Casablanca and Tunis. The Secretary extended his congratulations and thanks to every member of the staffs at those posts.

In his present message the Secretary suggests that letters expressing appreciation of their services be addressed to the officers who contributed in such a signal manner to the success of the North African operations.

It is a great pleasure to comply with this agreeable instruction. It also affords me an opportunity to add my personal thanks for the splendid cooperation and effective contribution which you gave throughout a difficult and trying period.

Faithfully yours,

Robert D. Murphy

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Subject: COON, Prof. Carleton S.; Recommendation for Commission.

- 1. I have had the privilege of knowing Professor Coon for a period of well over ten years, as a personal friend and as a colleague at Harvard University.
- 2. Professor Coon is an outstanding anthropologist. His professional writings and his teaching have been marked by brilliant and original thinking, and his capacity for carrying a heavy burden of work is exceptional. Professor Coon has carried out extensive research work in Europe, North Africa and the Middle East, and he is as much at home among the native peoples of those areas as he is in the museums and laboratories of Cambridge.
- 3. Professor Coon's loyalty and patriotism are beyond question, he has the highest personal and scientific integrity and, if commissioned, I feel confident that he will reflect credit on the uniform he wears. It is a pleasure to recommend that his application for a commission be accepted.

I am very pleased to endorse the security of Dr. Carleton S. Coon who has been a teaching colleague of mine at Harvard for many years. He is a man of high integrity and great loyalty. I only wish that we had more people like him to carry forward various phases of the work that OSS is doing.

He is thought highly of by his associates on the Harvard Faculty as well as by a host of students and many friends.

PRODUCED NO. OVER SOME

I regret to have to inform you that the action on Major Coon is being rejected by the Budget and Procedures Branch. The reason for this is that branch historians are not supposed to be full time positions. Furthermore, the only positions established anywhere near the salary level that you propose to use are in the office of the Director of OSS assigned to the History Project.

ERBER IN FOLL

I believe that if this job title and job description were made up in such a way as would place the emphasis upon the proposed work of Operations Analyst that the position could be more easily justified. However, I do not mean to say that you should call Major Coon an Operational Analyst if his works can only be used in connection with the History Project.

I would very much appreciate the opportunity of talking this action over with you before you submit it again.

1. Major Coon, as has been stated in the basic recommendation, served in a civilian capacity as an American representative at the outset of his operations and continued in that capacity until commissioned in the Army in July 19h3. He was, however, a qualified ment of this office which operated under the command of the Theater Commander. As such, he was serving in that capacity with the army and consequently, it is believed that he fully qualifies for the decoration originally recommended.

2. It is further mentioned that it was determined that, for the period in question, it was deemed more beneficial to the Government to operate under the conditions above described.

- 2. Over and above the call of duty, and at great personal risk, between May 22, 1942 and October 6, 1943, Major Coon displayed extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against the enemy. Major Coon, in the role of Special Assistant to the American Legation, Tangier, travelled over most of Morocco, often in civilian clothes, including both the French and Spanish Zones, at the risk of his life from the Gestapo and other enemy agencies then operating overtly under the German Armistice Commission in Casablanca and the German Legation in Tangier. His duties were to enlist the services of large native organizations in Spanish Morocco for the following purposes: to create a revolution in that territory in case the Spanish Army should move against the flank of the American invasion forces landing on November 8th, 1942, or in case the Spaniards should attempt to close the Straits of Gibraltar to allied shipping; to attack the Germans should their forces move southward from France across Spain to menace the Allied landing forces. This was a political operation of great delicacy and security value; it would have resulted in death should Hajor Coon have been caught.
  - 3. During the same period he acted as courier between Gibraltar, Tangier and French Morocco, smuggling firearms, explosives, hand grenades, flares, and other incriminating material to the French resistance groups in the invasion ports for their use on D-Day. During the same period he also collected military intelligence from native sources, which he transmitted to Washington, and which were of great value to our forces in planning the details of the North African landings.

He saw action at Cap Serrat, where a small picked garrison of thirty to fifty men, of which he was a member, held the whole northern flank of the Allied line in Tunisia during a critical period.

This group, opposed by between four and six hundred of the enemy in mountainous forested country, held twenty-eight miles of territory between Sedjenane and the sea. Major Coon's personal actities during this period including winning over the native population to the allied cause, whereas before most of them had been hostile; in going alone on nightly expeditions in no-man's land to set booby traps and signal devices, to assure the safety of the garrison; in training, equipping, and dispatching two Arab agents with explosives sewn in their packsaddle to blow up a trainload of German troops between Tindja and Ferryville, which operation was successful.

As a result of these and other activities the local population was of active help in giving intelligence about the enemy, and in serving as guides; the enemy was held off until the critical period had passed; and a train containing several hundred German troops was destroyed.

In February, Major Coon was relieved from Cap Serrat and sent to Kassarine to perform similar services there, particularly in battle of Kassarine Pass which began on February 12, 1943.

During these operations Major Coon suffered severe concussion and injuries to his nervous system when a building, into which he had gone after being machine-gunned by enemy aircraft, was divebombed and collapsed.

5. While recovering from these severe injuries Major Coon was attached to the Fifth Army in Oujda, where under Colonel (now General) Edgar Howard, Assistant Chief of Staff G-2, Major Coon was made responsible for the defense of the Fifth Army territory against enemy saboteurs and intelligence agents coming from Spanish Morocco. Through his knowledge of local native peoples and their languages he and the men associated with him were able to prevent any single destructive act from being accomplished. When he left Oujda on May 8, 1943, after three months of service, Major Coon was given a letter of commendation signed by General Howard, a copy of which is attached.

6. On September 13, 1943, Major Coon landed with the first French assault wave on Corsica. This wave, under the command of General Henri Martin, included some forty American special personnel under Major Coon's command. Under his direction these American officers and men carried out continual combat and intelligence activities until October 6, 1943, the date of the fall of Bastia and the

MAJOR CARLETON S. COOM

From May 1942 to November 42, Major Carleton S. Coon in the role of Special Assistant at the U. S. Legation at Tangier was occupied in enlisting the services of various native organizations in Spanish Morocco. This was an extremely delicate operation, and he acted at great personal risk to his life. The object was to create a revolution in that territory in the event the Spanish should move against the U. S. Torch Forces, or the Germans should move against us through Spain.

Major Coon also smuggled grenades, and other arms into French Morocco for the use of resistance groups.

In January, February 1943, he was engaged in the Brandon Operation with members of British SOE at Cap Serrat and the Kasserine Pass. During these operations a small picked group, of which he was a member, covered an extraordinary length of front under combat conditions at the imminent risk of being captured or wiped out, thus convincing the Germans it was held in force.

Major Coon during this period trained two Arabs and sent them through the enemy lines to blow up a train full of German troops between Tindja and Ferryville. This operation was successfully carried out and the Arabs returned.

During these operations, Major Coon suffered concussion and injuries to his head when a building into which he had gone after the aerial machine-gunning was dive-bombed.

Approval for Carleton S. Coon as Intermittent Consultant.

DELLARATION OF APPOINT OF

Carleton S. Coon, in accordance with a long-standing arrangement, has to return to Harvard on 1 March. He has been extremely valuable to the History Project in writing and supervising two of our most difficult jobs — the history of the OSS in the North African theater and the history of SO, and I shall continue to need his services as an intermittent consultant.

The strategy of the history project as a whole made it desirable some months ago to give priority to the history of the North African theater, and this has naturally slowed up the history of SO, since Coon was the key man in both. For some weeks we thought the problem of the SO historian would be solved by Sgt. Warren Delano's being assigned to it. He was here long enough to line up the documentation out of which the history can, under proper supervision, be written, but his reassignment to the West Coast has left us desperate, all the more because SO itself has admitted its inability to assign any suitable person for the job.

We have attempted to solve the problem by using Coon as a supervisor and turning over to Mrs. Stevens the documents assembled by Delano. This scheme is now in progress, but it won't be finished (or nearly so) by the time Coon has to leave. To prevent the SO history from getting bogged down, the History Project will need to have Goon come down here about six times in the period between 1 March and 1 June.

Coon's occasional presence here is, in short, indispensable. He is prepared to accept such an arrangement as a special favor to me. The expense involved would be relatively slight in proportion to the services rendered.
Without him, Mrs. stevens (CAF-5) would be quite unable to do the job. We would have to try to find someone else at a much higher echelon to undertake it. I doubt if we could find anyone so well equipped as Coon is at any price.

Like many other men of genius, he is temperamental, but he has had a brilliant record in action, is completely loyal, and I have no one on the History staff who has contributed so much to the writing of OSS history.

STANDARD FORM NO. 64

In response to the instructions at the head of Standard Gentlemen: Form No. 57, which is enclosed, I am writing this letter to state why I am not applying for a specific civil service examination.

I am to be employed as an historian, a position which I currently occupy. I have been doing this work for the last five months, and my present project has not been completed. Since I am being discharged from the army, it is the wish of those in charge of this project to keep me on it until it is nearly or finally completed. It is my intention to return to my duties at Harvard University in March, 1945. The present application covers the period between my putative discharge from the army and that date.

Since my job does not come under any formal civil service category, and since I am already doing it to the satisfaction of my employers, there seems no need for a special examination.

Sincerely,

Carleton S. Coon

SUBJECT: Job Description

 From the present date until March 1, 1945, I intend to continue my present occupation, both as an officer and as a civilian; my military status or absence thereof will make no difference in my work.

- 2. My present occupation is twofold; Branch Historian of SO and Theater Historian of the Mediterranean Theater. There are other Branch Historians, but I am the only Theater Historian in the organization.
- 3. At present I have three assistants helping me on the Theater History; I have not yet succeeded in finding a suitable assistant in the Branch History, but hope that such a person will appear. I usually have enough typing to keep two or three women busy full time.
- 4. Wy technique of writing history has been derived in part from my experience as a professional anthropologist and in part from the lessons learned in writing the history of the Torch Operation, which took me from June to September 1944. My first step is twofold; to interview as many as possible of the men who have actually participated in OSS operations, and obtain from them critical narratives in their own individual styles; to abstract pertinent data from records and reports on file in Washington.

My second step is to prepare from these sources an objective narrative of events, taking into consideration the principle that history is a record of changes in the relations of individuals and institutions; not daily or seasonal or other routine and repetitive changes which involve no alteration of the current equilimbria of the persons and institutions concerned, but those which permanently alter the adjustment of human beings within institutions and in society as a whole.*

hope will be of profit to the organization in that it will point out in an impersonal way the causes of our successes and failures, so that we can learn how best to regulate the internal structure of our organization, how to perform, most effectively the operations for which it exists, and in particular how to select personnel best qualified to fill the varied and specialized positions necessary in an organization such as ours. In other words, I believe that history can approach the status of a science, in that functional relationships between variables can be learned and future behavior predicted, and that like other forms of science it can be put to practical use. The greatest single task which confronts all of us, once the war is won, is to prevent its recurrence; if the GSS history can do its share in giving guidance, this project will well be worth the effort, time, and expense.

Report: The patient states that since age ll or 12 years he has had allergic reactions whenever he ate eggs. Within ten minutes after eating egg he develops tightness of the throat, difficulty in breathing, shallow rapid breathing, tachycardia, followed by protracted vomiting which finally gives relief. He has not noted wheezing. Following vomiting he is weak and exhausted for about 24 hours and has aphonia for the same length of time. He has noted that when he eats egg in smaller quantities he has partial loss of the voice only without the other symptoms. The odor of frying eggs will cause vomiting. Ingestion of chicken also causes vomiting. He is able to tolerate small quantities of turkey and duck. Rabbit meat also causes vomiting. Young veal or pork also cause vomiting.

The patient entered on active duty 16 July 1943. He had been a civilian government employee for about 16 months and was on overseas duty since May 1942. He avoided eating the offending foods most of the time, although he had severe reactions occasionally. Since entry into the Army he has had to eat at army messes, which gave frequent reaction because of the wide use of egg powder. He consequently ate very little and lost about 50 pounds in weight. He has regained most of this weight since return to the United States.

No other allergic symptoms.

Family history: The patient states that his mother is allergic to eggs but her reaction is not known. His son will not eat eggs because when he does he develops nausea.

Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium Rockville, Maryland

August 18, 1944

Lt. Col. Carl O. Hoffmann Office of Strategic Services 25th & E Streets Washington, D. C.

Dear Colonel Hoffmann:

I examined Major Carleton Coon on Saturday, August 12th. I am enclosing a report of what I considered to be the major significant findings, together with my impression as to his present neurological status.

I should like to add a quite unofficial and general impression which I have gotten from my experience with a number of men in similar situations. It is simply that I feel their future usefulness might be seriously curtailed by too prolonged strain of physical effort under dangerous conditions. You will, I am sure, understand that I speak from a physician's interest in the ultimate health and productive capacity of the patient s, realizing that my impression would nave to be balanced against the importance of their participation in any particular job.

Very sincerely,

David McK. Rioch, M. D.

Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium Rockville, Maryland

Summary of significant findings in examination of Major Carleton Coon, Aug. 12. 1944.

There is a history of several concussions, the most severe of which was at the age of 15. At that time he was knocked out by a blow on the bridge of the nose, put to bed while still unconstitious, and did not wake up until the following morning.

In 1925, while on an expedition in North Africa, he had a prolonged illness, with fever and loss of weight from 145 to 95 lbs. The sight in the left eye was lost during this illness and was only gradually recovered after return to this country several months later.

Approximately 10 years ago he began to have sharp attacks of pain which radiated round the trunk at the lower margin of the ribs. He was treated for about 2 years for duodenal ulcer, without relief. He then noticed that his left leg was slightly shorter than the right and had the heel of the left shoe elevated  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch. The pains promptly stopped.

Approximately one year ago, after having had several traumatic experiences and having been on an inadequate diet for sometime in North A frica, he had a series of attacks with the following characteristics: onset was with severe pain at the back of the neck followed by a sense of difficulty in breathing. Hyperphoea, hyperventilation and severe tachycardia quickly supervened. After this had continued a few minutes a sense of numbness developed in the fourth and fifth digits of the left hand, extended to the other digits, then appeared in the right hand and spread up both arms. In the more severe attacks similar numbness developed in the toes and extended to the knees. This was accompanied by a marked sense of weakness, though the legs twitched and jerked during the attack. Recovery was spontaneous in from 15 to 45 minutes, depending on the severity of the attack, but it left him weak for the rest of the day. S hortly after the onset of these attacks he was ordered back to this country and the attacks decreased in intensity and frequency.

On returning here he consulted Dr. Gilbert Horrax, or the Lahey C linic, Boston, Mass. A diagnosis of cerebeilar tumor was made and a pneumo-encephalogram for confirmation was carried out. The latter showed normal ventricles and no signs of tumor, but there were indications of thickened meninges and of adhesions between the pin and durs. As these findings ruled out the question of tumor D r. Horrax recommended section of the greater occipital nerves to relieve the pain at the back of the neck, which had continued. The nerves were sectioned, and resulted in anesthesia of the back of the scalp to the vertex. The pain in the suboccipital region and at the back of the neck was temporarily relieved. As frequently happens, the pain has returned recently.

There is also a history of pain in the face on two previous occasions. Several years ago there was severe pain in the left jaw following the extraction of a tooth. An attempt to produce an alcohol block of the mandibular branch of the left trigeminal nerve failed, but the symptoms were later entirely relieved by an operation on the left mandible which removed a number of fragments of bone pressing on the nerve. Soon after there was pain through the right side of the face and head, which was probably of the nature of a "histamine" headache. This stopped spontaneously following a severe emotional reaction.

Neurological Examination.

The very slight shortness of the left leg results in some postural asymmetry and slight limp which is corrected by the raised heel on his shoe. Muscular power and coordination is otherwise normal and equal on the two side. Fine movements are well performed.

There is no ataxia, tremor, involuntary movement or muscular fibrillation. No sings of cerebellar disease.

Position, pain and touch senses are normal throughout. No swaying in the Romberg position. (There is of course sensory anesthesia over the area supplied by the greater occipital nerves. The margins of this area of anesthesia are no longer sharp, suggesting that a certain amount of regeneration has occurred).

Ophthalmoscopic examination shows the left disc slightly pale and its superior margins somewhat indistinct. There is no evidence now of present or past papilledema. The retinal vessels are entirely normal and there are no signs of retinitis.

The deep reflexes are brisk and equal throughout. Plantar stimulation gives normal plantar flexion. Abdominal reflexes were obtained on first examination, but not on repetition.

Impression.

Neurological examination is now within normal limits, with the exception of the changes in the left optic disc. These are probably due to the illness in 1925, possibly on the basis of anemia or vascular change at that time.

The findings by pneumoencephalogram are consistent with the history of repeated concussions and would support a diagnosis of a mild post-traumatic syndrome. Further laboratory and clinical examinations would be necessary to determine the relation of these findings to the neurological symptoms.

With regard to physical fitness to undertake new assignments my impression is that Major Coon is able to undertake an assignment of limited duration, i.e., one in which the factors of physical strain and of the anxieties attendant on responsibility do not exceed three to four weeks. The report of the pneumoencephalogram and the history of other, repeated head traumata are consistent with reduction in ability to undergo strain over long periods, although there is no evidence of reduction in the subject's normal ability provided adequate rest and diet are available.

DEPARTMENT OF ANTHROPOLOGY

Peabody Museum Cambridge, Massachusetts April 27, 1945.

Dear Helen:

Here is what happened on the weekend of April 13-15 as far as the RR is concerned. My Boston agent got me a round trip ticket with a single bedroom each way. Owing to the way the form was filled out ( and I hope they will keep on being filled out that way) the ticket agent gave the above accommodations on the voucher (green). So I paid nothing, except personal gratuities for the service. So I owe the govt. the difference between a lower berth and a single bedroom, each way. The drawing room enters the picture in that, when my wife and dog decided to come up to Boston too, I turned in the ticket for the single bedroom going North (or Northeast) and received in exchange a ticket for a drawing room. I paid cash for the difference. And the dog crawled under the lower berth.

I just talked to Frank Ball, who called me Colonel, and said that if I would certify that the copy was a true copy all is jake. So I don't need to pull everything apart for that letter.

Date: 2 April 1945

DECLASSIFIED

It looks, sez he, as if the thing would succeed anyway.

I am sorry there have been so many trials and tribulations in the path of the project. You need a few more 200 lb members down there to do a little schnozzle-punching.

Am in the midst of moving and trying to juggle tables without banging my haid.

best regards to all

Dear Professor Finch: I would be greatly obliged if you will send me a copy of The Nature of Geography by Richard Hartshorne which was published in Volume 29, Numbers 3 and 4 of the Annals of the Association of American Geographers. Dr. Hartshorne informed me that you have some copies of this at hand and that you are the person from whom they should be obtained. If this is the case I would like to have it sent to me at the following address: Apartment 536, Dorchester House 16th & Euclid Sts. Washington, D. C. Please bill me for this including postage. of Anthropology, Harvard University load you very such for asking so to see it.

Per (COON) ( 11 January 1945 John Stratford Carleton S. Coon Critique of Training Film on Japanese Geography On January 11th I attended a showing of the new training film concerned with the geography of Japan. I took with me Sgt. Warren Delano, an advanced student of geography with training at Harvard and in Europe, and former head of R&A in Honolulu. My own uncritical estimate of the picture was based on two things -- general impression, which was very favorable, and a realization that material which both Delanc and I would like to see that was not included will presumably be covered in DECLASSIFIED other reels. On the whole the presentation was artistic and dynamic. I like it very much as a picture. Sgt. Delano has a few technical suggestions to offer. In the animated maps, only the four main islands were shown. The Riu Kiu Islands, Karafuto (Southern Sakhalin) and the Kuriles, were omitted. All of these are important from a strategic standpoint. The four main islands are shown in most of the map shots in vacuo, which may be fine for purposes of concentrating attention, but more emphasis might be also laid on the relationship of the Japanese archipelago to continental Asiatic areas. Tastiff of The E The films are mainly from Honshu. Strategically the Kuriles, Hokkaido, Riu-Kiu, etc, may also be important. If you have no fill important. If you have no film on these areas, Sgt. Delano suggests the following: While he was in Honolulu the army seized a vast amount of Japanese film, which was turned over to the Signal Corps. They edited much of this for their own purposes. Have you tried to tap this source? I hesitate to offer any criticisms whatever, in view of the immense amount of work you have gone to in making this most agreeable reel; my main comment is, have you exhausted the Signal Corps source, or have they

Approval for Carleton S. Coon as Intermittent Consultant.

Carleton S. Coon, in accordance with a long-standing arrangement, has to return to Harvard on 1 March. He has been extremely valuable to the History Project in writing and supervising two of our most difficult jobs -- the history of the OSS in the North African theater and the history of SO, and I shall continue to need his services as an intermittent consultant.

The strategy of the history project as a whole made it desirable some months ago to give priority to the history of the North African theater, and this has naturally slowed up the history of SO, since Coon was the key man in both. For some weeks we thought the problem of the SO historian would be solved by Sgt. Warren Delano's being assigned to it. He was here long enough to line up the documentation out of which the history can, under proper supervision, be written, but his reassignment to the West Coast has left us desperate, all the more because SO itself has admitted its inability to assign any suitable person for the job.

We have attempted to solve the problem by using Coon as a supervisor and turning over to Mrs. Stevens the documents assembled by Delano. This scheme is now in progress, but it won't be finished (or nearly so) by the time Coon has to leave. To prevent the SO history from getting bogged down, the History Project will need to have Coon come down here about six times in the period between 1 March and 1 June.

Coon's occasional presence here is, in short, indispensable. He is prepared to accept such an arrangement
as a special favor to me. The expense involved would be relatively slight in proportion to the services rendered.
Without him, Mrs. Stevens (CAF-5) would be quite unable to do the job. We would have to try to find someone else at a much higher echelon to undertake it. I doubt if we could find anyone so well equipped as Coon is at any price.

Like many other men of genius, he is temperamental, but he has had a brilliant record in action, is completely loyal, and I have no one on the History staff who has contributed so much to the writing of OSS history.

SUBJECT: SO Procurement Objective.

Gory In Each File X

1. Commissions for certain civilians were approved prior to June 21st by the OSS Military Personnel Board. These commissions, therefore, if processed, will not be considered a part of the SO Procurement Objective of four places, which was allotted to us by General Donovan on June 26th. It is within Commander Hallivell's power to cancel any or 11 of these commissions - thus increasing SO's Procurement Objective from four to seven. Applications coming under this classification are as follows:

- a) Francis Kalnay Captain. Mr. Kalnay's application is now pending in the War Department and may be approved at any time.
- b) Edley Nuper 2nd Lieutenant. Mr. Nupen's application was approved by the OSS Military Personnel L .... board on May 24th. The application has not yet been forwarded to the War Department.
  - c) George Sharp Major. Commander Halliwell has requested that Mr. Sharp's application be forwarded to the War Department immediately for processing.
- 2. SO Has made certain partial commitments to other civilians in regard to commissions. In this classification are the following:
- a) Carleton S. Coon Major. Commander Halliwell will almost certainly wish to use one of the vacancies in his Procurement Objective for this man.
- b) Gerald Miller Major. Mr. Miller's ap lication was approved by the OSS Military Personnel Board on June 21st. Mr. Miller is serving in a dual capacity as assistant to Mr. George Sharp and as assistant to Lt. Thompson, European Theater Officer.

Mr. Scribner & Mr. Hancock

- c) F. Bayerd Rives Major. M. Rives has not yet George Sharp. The OSS Board. He is to be assistant to Mr.
- d) Grenville Holden Captain Var. Holden has not Area Operations Officer for the Near East. Mr. Holden is to be Assistant that he lans to go overseas in August or Scatember. The writer does not know whether Commander Hallivell concurs in this plan.
- serve as Security Officer. It is probable that he will also do some other staff work for SO.
- under consideration as SO Planning Officer. According to Services in order to join our staff.
- be an assistant in the NE Operations Office. Mr. Jordan will
- to use Mr. Mykland as C erations Officer for Scandinavia under Mr. Sharp. It is the writer's impression that Mr. Mykland is so close to induction that it will be impossible to commission him.

l. I do not know what to suggest about Stafford Reid as I have never had an opportunity to see the results of any of his work.

2. Mr. Reid is well considered by Colonel Eddy, but his experience is more on the intelligence than on the operations side.

3. It is my impression that SI would like to use Mr. Reid. Perhaps this is the place in which he could be most useful.

4. I am delighted that you are going to send Carlton Coon to Cairo, and I am sure that he will be very useful there.

Mr. Rehm

SUBJECT: Dr. Carleton S. Coon - Salary

On April 13th, Mr. Rehm paid Dr. Coon $82.00, representing $6.00 per diem from April 1-15 less refund from Dr. Coon for difference between $10.00 per diem paid Dr. Coon for April 1 and 2 and the $6.00 per diem agreed upon as of April 1.

Dear Carl:

- 1. In the event that I don't have the pleasure of seeing you -- I hope I do, but my fate is more than customarily uncertain --I wonder if you would consider writing a citation for Staff Reid.
  - 2. Your citation included:
    - A. Torch
    - B. Corsica

In the same vein, I believe Staff's should include:

- A. Torch
- B. Yugoslavia
- 3. King is up for DSM for Torch and I think that Staff should be recommended for the same decoration, don't you?
- 4. Staff's very interesting report on his participation in Torch which you will want to read anyway will provide ample material to refresh your knowledge of Staff's work for Torch.
- 5. Packy McFarland states that Staff's Yugoslav participation will be taken care of by Colonel Huntington and that you need not bother about it, however some reference might be made to it should you decide not to include it with the Torch participations in the same recommendation.

As ever,

Mrs. Helen T. Linde, History Project, OSS, Washington, DC.

Here is the stub of my ticket to Springfield. I got on the train, bribed the blackamoor a buck, got up at 4 AM, and went into the lounge for Boston, and sat there reading until 8.15 AM, came home, and slept all day. I cannot find the stub of the ticket coming down and sept all day. coming down, and can only conclude after an exhaustive search and by process of elimination that one Ethiop, Lethe Roy by name, to seed it away while pretending to clean my specificant of the Box. tossed it away while pretending to clean my apartment at the Dorchester House on Wednesday morning. I might point out that my painful vigil on the lounge saved the govt. a few simoleons, which will without doubt make up for the use of a bedroom the other way.

Dear Mr. Shepardson:

On next Tuesday and Wednesday, June 19 and 20, I plan to be in Washington in the capacity of a consultant for Dr. Conyers Reed's project. This will be my first visit in two months, and under present circumstances my last for an equal period. If you or Dr. Langer or both would like to see me on either of those days, I am at your service. I do not expect an answer to this letter, but will call your secretary when I arrive in Washington on Tuesday morning. Most sincerely

Dear Helen:

Thank for the TR's. I am getting reservations thru Boston to go down the night of the 18th and return the night of the 20th. Now there is some question whether I will be able to go back on the 20th or have to wait over until the 21st; my wife has a lot of gear kicking around the nation's capital; if I can get it assembled and ready for despatching in two evenings I can leave on the 20th; otherwise the 21st. Therefore I would be very happy if you would make a reservation for me for the 21st, as an extra jib in case of rough weather. Also things may turn up in other quarters to keep me over; the spare will all in all be very useful.

Many thank also for the dope from Frank Ball; my wife wante to know whether to put my uniforms away in moth balls or not. I saw Crane Brinton in the faculty club the other day; but he was in a hurry and I didn't ask him how he liked Geoffrey's piece in the New Yorker.

Don't get too theatrical now in your dressing room; and don't let Shirley, if she is still there, use up all the make-up. You might try a fale mustache on Geoffrey and a putty nose on Arthur Wilton

Best regards, Oal

Voucher for travel of Carlton S. Coon

Returned herewith is Dr. Coon's voucher for travel performed from 18 June to 21 June 1945, which you returned to him on 9 July for T. R.'s. Dr. Coon advised this office that he does not have the T. R. s, and the recollection of this office is that they were forwarded with the voucher at the time it was originally sent to you. In any case, they apparently can not be located, and this is to request that reimbursement on this voucher be made as soon as possible. be made as soon as possible.

Very best regards

Dr. Carleton S. Coon, 92 Washington Avenue, Cambridge, Mass.

Dear Carl:

Thanks very much for your letter of August 3rd and its follow-up with the information from Richard Frye. The info was all passed on to Steve.

After passing on the McCowan sketch to the interested section, Steve noted the following regarding Frye:

"I know Frye and will be much interested in his further investigations of his subject. I wish him luck and urge him to be very circumspect."

We may follow-up later with a further request for info from McCown.

It was swell having the three of you with us down here.

I am now trying to figure out how to get up to Cambridge in September.

Wish me luck.

REPORT ON AREA S.

(aca S Feb. 27, 1944.

Galraining

To: Mr. Joseph Scribner.

From: Maj. C. S. Coon.

x Coon, Carlelon

Introduction: I went to Area S as a student on Wednesday, Feb. 23, and returned to Washington on Saturday, Feb. 26. I took the entire course except for the obstacle race, which was considered too tough for my physical condition. Otherwise no distinction was made between me and the other students, until after the course was completed; then I stayed on a few hours and discussed various matters with the staff, as will appear later.

Plant: An old 100 acre plantation in Fairfax County, with 15 buildings, two brooks, a forest, fields, boxwood nursery, and other facilities. The main house is used for students; sleeping, messing, lounging, and classes. Also staff offices on 3rd floor. The other houses, barns, etc. are used in some of the tests.

Staff: Chief is Lt. James Hamilton, MD.

Dr. Gingerelli

Br. Belachi

Dr. Fiske (Lt. jg)

one other Dr.

2 flunkies

5 enlisted men, former Harvard psych. students. various and sundry colored people.

Food: Wonderful. real old southern cooking with all the trimmings, miraculously based on GI rations.

curriculum: Two and a half days, three nights. They keep you humping from the moment you arrive there, never all dull moment. This slacks off a bit toward the end, as it should. The students are under constant observation, various people are taking notes on their behavior, attitudes, etc. all the time. The staff has so much to do they seldom retire before 2 AM, and when I left were frantically using their one spare day scrubbing the floors and tidying up for the general's proposed or expected visit.

SECTION

Tests: The whole thing is one continuous test and it is hard to tell where one leaves off and the next begins. In general, however, it may be broken down as follows:

Medical Exam. Dr. Hamilton.

Psychiatric Exam: Dr. Lyman. time is saved by lengthy biographies which the students fill out about themselves. Lyman told me that some of the young OG boys there have such simple personalities that he can handle them in the time allotted; in the case of older more complex individuals, where anything is wrong, he can only diagnose in the time given, not cure. After all this is a testing area, not a hospital. I think he does a wonderful job.

Memory Tests: these include identifying pictures with names after having looked at each for 20 seconds; spending one and a half minutes in a room with a flashlight, and having to identify the objects in the room from a mass of other objects the next day; looking at a map for twenty minutes and answering questions on its strategic points several hours later.

Imagination and Creativeness Tests: Ten pictures are shown.

Students have to write a ten minute short story about each.

Other tests combine these qualities with leadership and cooperation.

Vocabulary Tests, and tests of general education and sophistication; many spot tests, usual style.

Deduction Teste: The student is given five minutes in a room which a man has just left, having spent the night there. Then, after examining objects left for five minutes, he is taken downstairs and examined. He is supposed to tell who the man was, where he came from, where he was going, his age, physique, general description, occupation, matital state, health, habits, tastes, hobbies, etc. in detail. Another test is to frisk a brief case in ten minutes and tell what the enemy agent who owned the case was up to and how to catch him.

orone T

Leadership and Cooperation: Three men are chosen to form a team, and taken to the creek. On the other side is an anvil, also two big stones. They are given an axe and pulley, three ropes, and several short planks. They are told to get the three heavy objects across the creek. Elaborate notes are made on timing, tedinique, who tells whom what to do, who does what, etc.

The student is taken to a place where two sergeants are sitting, and a lot of pieces of overgrown meccano toys lie around. He is told to direct the sergeants to build a cage, in ten minutes, according to a diagram given. The sergeants are bastards of the first water. One is a mealy loquacious domineering type, the other lazy. No one gets the cage built. What is tested is to see how you deal with these two incomparable sons of bitches. How soon you get mad, give up, etc. I got mad as hell and flunked this.

A treasure hunt in the woods for a team of five or six, with one appointed leader, to get three pieces of a message and put them together. In my team the leader was speechless; I got all three privately. The score on cooperation in our team was zero.

Toughness and speed: Obstacle race in which you dash from clue to clue, jump out windows, climb ropes, leap streams, fall in, and people throw soft baseballs at you. A tough workout. I was not allowed to do this.

On the Spot Test: Each student is separately told to go in the dark to a certain house, look under a blotter, and get the first clue to a message hidden elsewhere. It is so rigged that each student is caught in the house and taken prisoner; conducted to a room where three men, invisible, sit behind a bright light shining in the student's eyes. A former criminal lawyer gives him an oral third degree. He is supposed to make up a cover story to explain his presence in the house. Marks on ingenuity in lying. Lots of fun. I am told I did well in this.

Debate cum whiskey. The last night, two teams are chosen for a debate on what to do with Germany after the war. During the preparation and the debate itself, anyone can drink all he wants. Encouraged to help yourself, rye, rum, and brandy. A lot of fun and very instructive.

Remarks on Gurriculum; There were other tests, but they came at us so fast that these are all that I can remember in any detail. The instructors, by these means, test speed of reaction and working speed, accuracy, memory, ingenuity, creativeness, toughness, leadership, cooperation, sophistication, general education, and they give an excellent line on the student's mental traits and background. In my opinion they are quite adequate to serve as a basis for classification in terms of work to be done.

The atmosphere of the school is very friendly and relaxing; the staff works very hard, but yet they work together with no sighs of tension or friction, and they pay much friendly personal attention to each student, without discrimination.

In my opinion this school is an excellent introduct on for the new recruit to OSS; it makes him feel one of the gang, it braces him and puts him in a mood to put forward his best effort. As far as I could tell, living with them 24hrs a day, they all liked it. I heard no one crab about anything.

GENERAL COMMENTS AND CONCLUSIONS:

- (1) The staff has not been told enough about the different kinds of jobs these men may be given to do, so they do not know well enough what qualities to test for. I helped them in this as much as Ly could, but they need more information from men who have returned from the field.
- (2) Since nearly 1/2 of the tests depend on a knowledge of the English language, the instructors have to discount the language factor in forgign students.
- (3) Hamilton, Lyman, et al. want to bring in more machine tests of physiological reactions which can be objectively measured without language, since they are quite aware of the difficulty mentioned in (2). They already have some machines on order. This desire of theirs should be encouraged, since it will show such factors are response to flear stimuli. anger-responses, dominance of personality, etc. more easily than some of the present tests. (4) At A-3 I was told that one student, William, who had been given a high rating at S, flunked his Pittsburgh scheme (penetration of Jones & McLaughlin plant for a dummy SO job, being caught, and given the works by fake FBI men) in that when they put the screws on him he broke down, jittered, and split at once. I do not think this is the fault of S. That is not what they are testing for. If they were to scare the men too much they would upset the rest of the program. Since office staff, signal corps people, etc. are all screened in S together with SO, SI, and OG candidates, it would be useful for relatively few individuales, and in my opinion this horror test is better confined to A-3 where it belongs, unless S can get a machine to test this quality without taking too much time or consciously upsetting the student too much Otherwise such a test would unduly lengthen the course and upset the esprit de corps which S so successfully builds up. In my opinion, if the S instructors had been told exactly what SO men were to be tested for, in the light of field experience, I think they still could have spotted William. In any case William and his trouble serve to cast a light on some of the general problems of schools and training.

in each class of 18 students. It does not take long and it would give the staff priceless data on how to improve their work and that of the other areas. The best test of all will come when men initially screened at S and then sent on a job come home and are retested.

(6) I cannot praise these men, Hamilton, Lyman, Gingerelli, etc. too highly. I think that Area S is one of the highpoints of the OSS.

24 April 1945

SUBJECT; Recommendation for Award of the Distinguished Service Cross to Major Carleton S. Coon, Inf., AUS, Ret. 0-925129

TO : Commanding General, MEDTO

1. Under the provisions of AR 600-45, it is recommended that the Distinguished Service Cross be awarded to Major Carleton S. Coon, Inf., AUS, Ret. 0-925129.

- 2. Over and above the call of duty, and at great personal risk, between May 22, 1942 and October 6, 1943, Major Coon displayed extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against the enemy. Major Coon, in the role of Special Assistant to the American Legation, Tangier, travelled over most of Morocco, often in civilian clothes, including both the French and Spanish Zones, at the risk of his life from the Gestapo and other enemy agencies then operating overtly under the German Armistice Commission in Casablanca and the German Legation in Tangier. His duties were to enlist the services of large native organizations in Spanish Morocco for the following purposes: to create a revolution in that territory in case the Spanish Army should move against the flank of the American invasion forces landing on November 8th, 1942, or in case the Spaniards should attempt to close the Straits of Gibraltar to allied shipping; to attack the Germans should their forces move southward from France across Spain to menace the Allied landing forces. This was a political operation of great delicacy and security value; it would have resulted in death should Major Coon have been caught.
- 3. During the same period he acted as courier between Gibraltar, Tangier and French Morocco, smuggling firearms, explosives, hand grenades, flares, and other incriminating material to the French resistance groups in the invasion ports for their use on D-Day. During the same period he also collected military intelligence from native sources, which he transmitted to Washington, and which were of great value to our forces in planning the details of the North
- 4. In January and February of 1943 Major Coon was engaged in an operation in Tunisia known as the Brandon Mission, in conjunction with members of the British Army Special Operations Executive.

Notable results of his mission were: combat, in association with the Moroccan Goums, at Barqueta, Monte Alban, and Tighime Pass; the infiltration of an agent into Bastia, who produced daily intelligence reports which Major Coon transmitted to AFHq. 1. Major Goon, as has been stated in the basic recommendation, served in a civilian capacity as an American representative at the outset of his operations and continued in that capacity until commissioned in the Army in July 1943. He was, however, a qualified egent of this office which operated under the command of the Theater Commander. As such, he was serving in that capacity with the army and consequently, it is believed that he fully qualifies for the decoration originally recommended.

It is further mentioned that it was determined that, for the period in question, it was deemed more beneficial to the Government to operate under the conditions above described.

- 2. Over and above the call of duty, and at great personal risk, between May 22, 1942 and October 6, 1943, Major Coon displayed extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against the enemy. Major Coon, in the role of Special Assistant to the American Legation, Tangier, travelled over most of Morocco, often in civilian clothes, including both the French and Spanish Zones, at the risk of his life from the Gestapo and other enemy agencies then operating overtly under the German Armistice Commission in Casablanca and the German Legation in Tangier. His duties were to enlist the services of large native organizations in Spanish Morocco for the following purposes: to create a revolution in that territory in case the Spanish Army should move against the flank of the American invasion forces landing on November 8th, 1942, or in case the Spaniards should attempt to close the Straits of Gibraltar to allied shipping; to attack the Germans should their forces move southward from France across Spain to menace the Allied landing forces. This was a political operation of great delicacy and security value; it would have resulted in death should Major Coon have been caught.
  - 3. During the same period he acted as courier between Gibraltar, Tangier and French Morocco, smuggling firearms, explosives, hand grenades, flares, and other incriminating material to the French resistance groups in the invasion ports for their use on D-Day. During the same period he also collected military intelligence from native sources, which he transmitted to Washington, and which were of great value to our forces in planning the details of the North and the state of t African landings.

O.S.S. ACTIVITIES IN CORSICA

September 12th to October 5th, 1943.

At 6 o'clock Saturday evening, September 11th, General Donovan called me into his office. I had come to Magnol with my baggage in order to start from there to the airport since I was to leave on the 8.30 plane for Cairo. The General, in the presence of Colonel Eddy, asked me how I would like to go to CORSICA. In reply I said that I would like it very much, but that I did not know how this would affect the plans previously made for the Middle East Theatre. The General replied that such decisions were up to him, and if he wanted me to go to Corsica, the Middle East Mission would be taken care of. In reply I said that I would be glad to go, and he said: "The ship leaves tomorrow at 6 p.m."

I then went off to Station "A" where I informed Lieutenant Harris that he could go with me, this having been approved by Colonel Eddy in the meanwhile. Returning to Algiers we prepared to go to bed when Henry Hyde came in and announced that the ship would leave at 6 oclock the next morning. This meant staying up all night to get prepared. Doing so involved going to Area "A", getting Lieut. Harris out of bed, and having him get together such explosives etc. as he could in the time available; going to Sinety to get together the equipment for the men; going to a place along the shore with Henry Hyde to pick up the radio operators; and getting the men together for about 5.30 It was a very hectic night, and we could hardly expect to make complete preparations in that time. We did not know what we would need in Corsica. We did not know where the two French battleships were going, whether they would land in the dark, or whether we would have to jump in the water; whether we would be met by Germans, Italians, patriots, or whom; whether we would have to "take to the Maquis", or enter the town. In other words, we were in complete ignorance of the military situation in Corsica, and had to prepare for We were told to travel light, and to take only the clothes on our backs, and no equipment other than weapons and

The group consisted of myself, Lieutenant Harris, John Ffoulke (Levie), his brother Charles (Levie), Christopher, Felix and Claude. Claude and Felix had four radio sets equipped with batteries and two charcoal burning chargers. At the last minute we were told that we could not take one of the sets, and later on, before the ship sailed, heartily resented.

Returning to the chronological narrative, we presented ourselves at the dock at 6 oclock, and prepared to go on board the "FANTASQUE", a French light cruiser or heavy destroyer which was to take us to Corsica. The dock was crowded with soldiers of the "Bataillon de Choo" who were also to go along. These were dressed in American uniforms with mostly British equipment, and the "Bataillon de Choc" sewn on their shoulders so that everyone could see who they were. They all carried British Commando knives, and stored their explosives, including such secret materials as booby trap releases, plastic, and so forth, in open boxes on the dock where everyone could see them. Although they themselves did not know where they were going, or at least had not been told, practically everyone in Algiers did, because a good many of them were Corsicans and speculation was rife, while Corsica was the obvious place for them to go. Security on the dock was nil. We were a little apprehensive of this as the morning went on, since the job of loading the ship did not progress as it should have, and since these men continued to sit and hang about the dock in full view of the people of They should have been put on the ship immediately before departure and under cover of darkness. Only in that way could their departure have been a surprise. They hung around until noon, at which time they were loaded on trucks and taken away. There were also a number of Tirailleurs Marocains there who were similarly herded on to the dock and herded back again. The man who seemed to be in charge of this procedure was Commandant CLIPET who, unlike the others, was dressed in British battle dress. We presented ourselves to him, and Henry Hyde told us that he was to be in charge of our mission, and we were attached

As the day wore on it became obvious that we were not going for some time. Clipet put off the start first at noon, then to 2 oclock, then 6 oclock in the evening, and then 9 oclock, so after having been up all night, I went to Colonel Eddy's apartment and got some sleep. At 6 oclock we all met again and went back to the ship. We did not know what time it was leaving, so decided to stay there so that we would not be left behind. We ate some rations on the deck, lay down and slept there. If we had known what time the ship was leaving, we could have employed that day and night making further preparations, seeing that our stock of explosives was what was needed, and seeing that we had the proper clothing and equipment and so forth; but since they kept putting us off, it was impossible for us to leave the ship long enough in any given time to do this.

At 9 oclock Monday morning, the two ships, the "FANTASQUE" and the "TERRIBLE" set off, our ship, the "Fantasque" on the right and the "Terrible" on the left. We crossed the Mediterranean at a terrific speed of 32 knots all day. I ate in the Officers Mess. Eventually a British Ensign who seemed to be attached to the ship as Signals Officer, came rushing to the Captain saying he had received a message in clear as follows: "Expedition cancelled, return at once to base". The Captain leapt out of his chair and said: "This cannot be true, ask for a confirmation". "It was on the ship's wavelength, sir". "Nevertheless ask for a confirmation". "Yes, sir" said the Ensign. The Ensign came back in an hour saying that the message was for some other ship.

As the afternoon wore on, we were told that the Germans had heard of our trip and had 45 Stukas waiting for us in Sardinia. Also that we were going so fast that the submarine detectors were not working. Finally night fell but there was a full moon and visibility was almost as good as in daylight. We kept a constant watch for submarines and listened constantly for airplanes. Anti-aircraft crews were constantly at their post and we had several alerts. One alert was probably caused by an American plane; we were not sure of this however. This plane kept out of vision and the range of our guns, but was clearly audible by the detectors.

As we approached Corsica, the "Fantasque" went ahead, and the "Terrible" astern, the latter developing some engine trouble, so we had to slow down. Eventually at midnight we came in sight of Corsica and the mountains of the Bay of Ajaccio loomed on either side. From afar we could see great fires burning on the mountains. The whole island seemed to be ablaze and we were puzzled to explain this. However, some of the boys who knew Corsica said this was an old custom to burn the Maquis during the dry season. However, they said that none of them had ever seen it done so It was not until we landed that we discovered that the extensively. . Germans had that day set fire to the whole countryside by means of incendiaries, so that these fires were not only annoying the inhabitants but also set off Italian gasoline dumps and ammunition, which for the next few days were exploding every few hours all over that part of the island. We pulled up to the docks, and met a noisy reception party which had been waiting there all day for us. They were shooting off pistols and shot guns in the air, singing the Marseillaise, yelling, screaming and dancing with joy. They were lighting matches and flashing torches. Houses were lit up, and there was no attempt at black-out or any other form of anti-aircraft security. We fully expected any moment to have the Germans come in force from the air and wipe us and the docks out of existence. Why they did not do so is a mystery which I cannot explain, since everybody in Corsica must have known what was going on by that time.

General Kollard insisted on going ashore first, and after him Colonel Doleuse. After them, the Bataillon de Choc. We were told that we would have to leave the ship last. Consequently when we carried our equipment ashore we found the others lined up in front of the docks, and the General making some sort of a speech accompanied by rounds of applause from the population. We tried to be as quiet and inconspicuous as possible, and loaded our baggage on to a small wooden truck alongside the railroad station. A certain number of patriots immediately recognized both John-Jerome and Charles Levid; their cover lasted for about five minutes in Corsica. They greeted us in a demonstrative manner and volunteered to pull our waggon for us, since no horse was Hence we quietly departed without attracting the attention of the French officials who had ignored us completely, and made no provision for us whatsoever. With our small group of carriage pullers, we proceeded down the main street, whereupon a small procession formed of local civilians who wanted to march along with us. Before we had gone two blocks, we had formed the nucleus of a parade.

woman rushed out of a doorway waving a British flag and proceeded at the head of the procession in front of us prominently displaying it. Noone had the heart to inform her that she had brought out the wrong flag for our group, but after a few blocks she turned back and went home. People kept asking us if we would honour them by sleeping in their houses, and finally we accepted the offer of a doctor who had several rooms and a ward free in his hospital. Our friends dragged the waggon to the hospital where we promptly went to bed. One curious thing that happened that night was that along the street a Corsican child asked me for chewing gum. This amazed me since Corsicans had been cut off from North Africa completely since the beginning of the war. I could not understand how this North African practice had proceeded to Corsica in advance of our arrival.

During the week from Monday, September 13th to Monday the 20th, most of our time was spent in trying to solve the problems of housing, transport, and communications, which had to be taken care of before we could do any work of consequence.

Housing. We immediately requisitioned the annex to the Hotel des Etrangers, which was by far the most suitable and desirable place for Headquarters in AJACCIO. We employed one man named Dupont as day guard, and another man (whose name I do not recall) as night These men were on the watch at the door at all times prepared to prevent with violence the entry of anyone without proper credentials. I established an office on the ground floor of this building, and allocated bedrooms to the staff. I also set aside one room for storage purposes. Felix installed himself upstairs and set up his radio. For food we ate in restaurants for the first few days, but this was very expensive, and eventually we sent our agents out to bring foods like hams, wine, cheese etc. so that we could eat in the house. We wanted to save our scanty supply of C rations for work on the Maquis. We had a telephone installed so that we could communicate with Commandant Clipet and General Henri Martin's office. So our housing was solved on the first day, and we lost no time in hiring an adequate staff of local patriots, most of whom had been family retainers of the two Levie brothers during their infancy. These retainers included Dupont, who was promptly nicknamed the "Shadow" - which name he accepted and by which he was called by everyone from then on; Antoine, who was a family chauffeur of the Levie brothers and the night watchchief of the Fire Department of Ajaccio; the "Shirt" known as Alex; and Sauveur also worked for us. Antoine's duties were to help us in the purchase of vehicles and in obtaining gasoline, and to act as general security officer. Antoine knew everyone in Ajaccio, and practically everyone on the Island, and was a man in whose judgment we could have implicit confidence and of whose loyalty there was no doubt. He was in a position to pass on the loyalty and discretion of anyone else with whom we might choose to have dealings.

The "Shirt" was our transportation officer, in charge of the maintenance of the cars, particularly the purchase of tyres, seeing they were in good repair and so forth. Sauveur ran our courier service between BASTIA and whatever point we might be using as headquarters. It was his job to drive up to the outskirts of Bastia, meet Christopher at some pre-arranged rendezvous, and drive back with full intelligence reports on the military situation in the Bastia area. He kept a constant chain going up until the time we moved into St. Florent, when Christopher came out of hiding and joined us. This was only four days before the fall of Bastia.

As for transport, the "Shirt" began at Transportation. As for transport, the "Shirt" began at once seeking out cars. I asked Commandant Clipet for the right to requisition some cars for my own group, and he said that I would have to go to Colonel Doleuse. I went to the latter who said that there were no cars and we could not have any. Knowing therefore that without transport we would be completely useless in Corsica, I proceeded to buy cars in the name of the American Government and obtained receipts for all of them. I bought an excellent Hotchkiss for 180,000 francs, a Renault for 140,000, a Chenault-Walker for 100,000, and a Peugeot for 80,000 francs. One week after we had bought the last of these cars, the French headquarters passed a decree that it was illegal for Americans or British personnel to purchase motor vehicles in Corsicu. By that time however we had all that we really needed, though we did not have more than our share since all of these were in constant use. As for gasoline, the Italians had several million litres on the Island, but the French found it very difficult to get this away from them. I found this hard to understand because we had no difficulty whatever in getting gasoline from the Italians ourselves when we wanted it. When I first went to get gasoline through the French, they made all sorts of difficulties, and told me that I would have to get a "bon" from Colonel Doleuse, which I did. When I took this to the garage, I was told that no gasoline could be issued on Colonel Doleuse's orders, but that such orders had to come from the Bataillon de Choc. When I went to the latter's headquarters I was told that the gasoline belonged to them and that we had no right to it. After considerable discussion I was given fifty litres as a special favour. This was a drop in the bucket in view of our needs. I wanted to send Sauveur to Bastia with Christopher, though naturally I could not tell them of this. After this we began buying gasoline on the Black Market, and getting it from the Italians. I went to the Italian Colonel who lived in the Hotel des Etrangers and he telephoned an order to the Italian barracks to give us After that Antoine made a deal with the Italian Captain in charge to get gasoline for us in return for a small bribe. and Antoine produced one big drum of gasoline which we used. They then bought five drums which they brought up to the house and set in the back yard. While we were away, French soldiers came and took this gasoline

Our transportation problem therefore in the early period at least consisted entirely of getting cars, getting them in shape to run, and providing them with gasoline and oil. Also their batteries were all run down. We had to have them all re-charged and even had to have a battery made for the Hotchkiss, by a Greek battery maker on the water

After the arrival of the OGs we borrowed two Italian trucks with drivers, and kept them with us indefinitely. The drivers were very pleased with our men and also the rations they received, and did not want to go back to their units. Since noone seemed to concern himself with this matter, we kept them, and as far as I know, still I might say that the French showed lamentable inefficiency in solving their own transport problems. The Corsicans who had been hiding their cars from the Italians and Germans, continued to do so from the French. Cars which they could not conceal had been immobilized by removing wheels, tyres, batteries and so forth, and hiding these parts in their houses and other buildings. When the day came when they had to sell them, it was necessary to search in half a dozen places for the missing parts. It took the best part of the first week to get the cars in running condition. It was this which slowed us up more than anything else. However, we were able to place Christopher and get our courier service running the second day of our stay in Ajacoio, that is, Tuesday September 14th.

Communication between Corsica and Algiers Communications. and between the different posts in Corsica, was poor from the start. We were not the only ones to have difficulty however, since the British took some time to establish contact and lost it frequently. I think there must have been some atmospheric condition or other natural phenomena which inhibits communication between these points. did not succeed in making contact with Algiers for several days, which annoyed us greatly because we had intelligence reports which we wanted to send, and also requests for equipment and supplies. We were forced to send such messages through the French who took a long time getting Felix could not make contact them through, and through the British. from the hospital, nor could be make it from the house; consequently I took him up in the mountains on two occasions, but that did not work either. However, he could hear Algiers very clearly all the time though Algiers could not hear him. He claimed - and Claude later made the same claim from the second station - that the operators in Algiers would not listen to them for more than five minutes, that if they had kept listening as long as they were supposed to, contact would have been established from They also claimed that each time the position of the the beginning. station was changed, contact was lost because the operators in Algiers were unwilling to dial widely enough in the area of the station Personally I am no radio man, and am totally unable to give an opinion on these matters. I suggest however that whoever is in charge of the Algiers W/T be told of these difficulties, and that every effort be made to find out what the trouble is. After Felix had established contact, I instructed him to remain in Ajaccio and keep in constant touch with Algiers, so that if the set which we used in the field did not work, we could still send messages back and forth by means of our courier service.

Claude came over several days after us, with Major Gillies' party. He was not happy with them, and tried to leave them to join us. I told him to remain at his post, since I had no authority to take

I made one very bad mistake the first day, when we were in Ajaccio, by leaning a radio set to Commandant Clipet. I did this with the approval of both Felix and Ffeulkes who said that we did not need it, while Felix said that it did not work very well. If I had known as much then as I do now about this set, I would not have done so. I tried to get it back from Commandant Clipet, but failed after he gave me many evasive answers. Colonel Livermore knows the situation and will get the set back from Clipet as roon as he can.

At the beginning we signed intelligence reports by the joint name of "Corsairs". We thought this name would be sufficiently obvious to Algiers to realize that this meant the Corsican group. Later messages sent by me personally were signed by my own name. I tried to indicate in my messages where we were by giving the name of the town where we were established, but this apparently was not included in all messages. I believe that some of the messages which I sent by courier for transmission by Ajaccio were abbreviated by the staff left there, and this abbreviation may have caused some of the confusion in interpretation in the Algiers Also transmission was very poor. There were many garbles and it took some time to figure out the meanings of messages received. I presume that this was also the case at the Algiers end. Members of the staff in Ajaccio apparently sent a considerable number of messages which I never saw until I arrived in Algiers. It was very difficult to keep records of messages, because in the first few days, Felix burned all his papers, and when I asked him about them, he told me that he had been instructed to burn them. I then told him that as he was not an agent but a base operator, he should ignore these instructions - to which he agreed resentfully. In the field it was difficult to keep records since I had no place to carry papers except in my shirt pockets, which were already stuffed with Bank of France notes, which I could not leave anywhere else. On the whole, our communications system could not be called a success. We were only partially able to communicate with Algiers, and then our messages were not generally understood. I hope that it will be possible to modify this situation so that in future these two places will be able to communicate with each other. It was also impossible for our two stations "NAPOLEON" and "SICILY" to intercommunicate. The British had the same difficulty between their base and field stations. I suggest therefore that in countries like Corsica, where our radio operatives are not working under cover, we use larger and more reliable types of set than the small agent set which we carried, and which should be limited to under-cover use.

successful effort in Corsica. The presence of the two Levie Brothers made this possible, for they immediately fell into the hands of a group of loyal family retainers, and friends of their father. John Jerome immediately despatched Christopher to Bastia, whence he maintained our intelligence service mentioned earlier, and he and Lieutenant Harris shortly after went to Levie and Zonza where they made contact with Commandant Pietri. An old friend of the Levie brothers' father, Pietri was the leader of the successful battle of Zonza in which the patriots defeated a much larger force of Germans - one of the three This relationship with the battles of any consequence in Corsica. patriots provided us with information in the Porto Vecchio region, and in a sense supplemented the data which we were receiving from the north. They also provided French documents such as Cartes d'identite, ration books, French stamps etc. which will serve a useful purpose in future operations into France.

S. O. WORK.

No S.O. work in the proper sense of the word was done in Corsica. By the time Lieutenant Harris had discovered Commandant Pietri, it was too late to find anyone to do demolition at Porto Vecchio. In Bastia it was impossible to find anyone to eliminate ships in the port. Furthermore we had trouble with the time delays in the limpets.

One of the chief reasons for our failure to do S.O. work was the presence and personality of Commandant Clipet, who discouraged the patriots, and forbade us to use explosives in areas in which we were interested. When we finally obtained permission from General Peake and General Henri Martin, to use our well-known explosive manure, we were unable to do so because the sergeant whom we sent to Porto Nuovo to obtain it, was sent away in a rude fashion by Clipet, and not permitted to enter the storeroom. As will be referred to later, we were unable to produce Molotov cocktails when wanted because of this incident and the lack of foresight on Clipet's part.

On our third day in Ajaccio, Lieutenant Harris and I went to the racecourse where the Tirailleurs Marocains were stationed, so that Lieutenant Harris could give them instruction in the use of the bazooka, of which they had twenty. However, he soon found these useless because the batteries had all run down and no one had thought to bring spares. Hence these important anti-tank weapons were useless in the Corsican campaign.

PATRIOT MOVEMENTS.

Like Major Gillies, we were supposed to make contact with patriots and do all in our part to help them in resistance against the Germans. Clipet however was officially in charge of the patriot activities. He and Lieutenant Petitjean, his extremely unpleasant boot-licking assistant, discouraged the patriot movement by their unfriendly and intolerant attitude. Clipet insulted Commandant Pietri to such an extent that the latter retired from the movement completely, vowing vengeance upon Clipet. I however kept Pietri's brother and four other men with us as members of our group to serve as guides and reinforcements for our OGs, and also to keep Pietri from carrying out his threat against Clipet. Since we knew that if anything happened to Clipet while his brother was with us, retaliation would take place. I told Clipet that the situation was serious and that I was doing my best to have him spared, but he laughed at me scornfully, and said that there was no need and he could just have Pietri shet.

Clipet and Petitjean, whenever they interviewed patriots left them standing while they personally remained seated. They called them by the second person singular, a title usually reserved for children and servants. They swore at them, screamed at them, and told them they were disreputable rabble, and dismissed them. I was personally present at a number of these interviews, particularly in Porto Nuovo.

Colonel Valentini was the head of the local patriot group at Porto Nuovo, but he was of little help because in accordance with the extreme provincialism of many Corsicans, he considered inhabitants of all regions more than ten miles from Porto Nuovo to be inhuman and deserving of extinction. When Corte was bombed, his remark was: "Good, that will teach those Corte people a lesson. I hope the town is laid flat." When our driver, Sauveur, brought us a piece of startling and extremely important intelligence concerning the German capture of Murato, and the shelling of San Pietro, both Clipet and Colonel Valentini called him a liar, and Valentini told him that Sauveur, being an Ajaccio man, was worthless, since all the people in Ajaccio were untrustworthy. If either Clipet or Petitjean had undorstood the parochial mediaeval mentality of the Corsican patriots, they could have employed them well, because these men were full of fire and determination to free their country from Axis domination. There is no wider gap however, in the mentality of European people than that between a product of the Paris suburbs like Clipet, and a feudal baron like Pietri.

Our own difficulties with Clipet were caused largely by his extreme rudeness. When Lieut.Col. Livermore came to visit us and I asked him to lunch at Porto Nuovo, Clipet renarked: "What do the Americans think this is? A family hotel?" Upon every occasion possible he made fun of our Ajacoio setup, and I heard him on several never did anything useful. He did not bother to say these things

When we moved to Casta, the incident of Clipet's failure to let us have supplied ensued. Then he sent Petitjean to ask me to assign three of our OGs to work for him as waiters in the French mess. I refused. Then Lieutenant Petitjean went up to our supply dump to draw a case of compo rations, and Sergeant Monti removed a case somewhat violently from the bottom of a pile. I have three witnesses, British, American and French, who state that Petitjean was at least nine feet away from the case, that Monti did not act in anger, and that it was a perfectly normal procedure for taking a case of rations from the storehouse. Petitjean however went to Clipet with the story that Monti had raged at him, then thrown a case on his feet and crippled him. Clipet went to Major Gillies and related the tale to him. I consider this petty action a deliberate attempt on the part of Petitjean and Clipet to provoke an incident against us so that he would have some cause for complaint, since his own star was on the wane, and he knew that we were not pleased with him.

O.G.s.

The main part of our activities in Corsica is concerned with the OGs - thirty men and four officers sent from Algiers. They arrived on Friday night, September 17th, shortly after midnight. At 3 oclock on Saturday morning I visited them at the schoolhouse where they were quartered. On Sunday I was able to present Captain Piteri and the three Lieutenants to General Henri Martin, who assigned us a definite territory in which to operate. He said that we were to harass vehicular traffic of the Germans between Casamozzo and a point about 40 kilometres In accordance with these instructions we all set out for Corte on Monday, September 20th, and spent the night there. Piteri had already gone before and requisitioned rooms for the officers and a school for the men. After we arrived there, Commandant Clipet and Major Gillies appeared and said that they were going with us, so we shared our quarters with them, although this was not in accordance with General Martin's request. The next day we all proceeded to Porto Nuovo where we set up an officers mess and headquarters in Colonel Valentini's house, and all OGs camped under the trees near the railroad station.

Our first mission was to take place on Tuesday night. The Germans had occupied three houses on the mountains to the north of us, and it was Clipet's idea that we should send three parties of men to break into the houses and kill the Germans. Consequently, three groups were made up under the leadership of Lieutenants Giannini, Russo and Harris. Lieutenant Gordon had returned from Corte to Ajaccio. At the last moment when the men were ready to depart, we received news from the patriots that the Germans had already evacuated the houses, and there was no need for this expedition. On the next night, Capt. Piteri and Lieut. Russo were to lead a party of eight men to the railroad approaching Ponte Alban, where eight Germans were manning a machine gun nest at the entrance to a tunnel. This machine gun nest was preventing the Italians from moving on to Barqueta. We could only find one guide to take us to this post. The plan was for two men to sit above the nest with hand grenades and sub-machine guns, and to kill the Germans should they become aware of the presence of the rest of the party, while the others were to form two small groups and close in on the Germans from either side, so that they could kill them with knives. Only in case these groups were observed by the Germans and the Germans opened fire on them, were the men to use their hand grenades and weapons. One man and a guide sat up above in the position mentioned. The Germans were quite visible, and these two men could have destroyed the nest very easily. However, Capt. Piteri and Lieut. Russo and their men got lost, and the guide would not let the enlisted man with him open fire on the Germans for fear of hitting the Piteri groups, or of warning the Germans of their presence. The enlisted man and the guide stayed there till dawn, after which they came home. Capt. Piteri and Lieut. Russo with their men wandered in the next day.

The next expedition was the second battle of Barqueta. The first battle of Barqueta consisted of a march by two battalions of Italians and a Colonel towards Barqueta, when the same eight Germans with their machine gun over Ponte Alban opened fire. The Italians fled. The Colonel returned to our headquarters full of fear stating that all his men with all their guns could not proceed down the road because there was a German in front of them. After this they left the region. At the time they left, the only Allied troops between Barqueta and Corte were our thirty men, for which reason we slept with our shoes on.

The next event was the arrival of the Goums in charge of Colonel Delatour. He proposed to Clipet that a party of our men should go out with his Goums for an attack on Ponte Alban, and Barqueta, to attempt with plastic grenades and Molotov cocktails to prevent any German armour from breaking through, at which point our men would destroy the vehicles etc. I asked Captain Piteri if he wished to go personally or send one of his officers, and if so, which one. He replied that Lieutenant Gordon should go. I mentioned to Capt. Piteri that Lieutenant Gordon was the only officer unfamiliar with that territory, but Piteri said it was Gordon's turn, and he should go. At dinner that night there was a Goum officer present who spoke English. I introduced him to Gordon, so that the two could discuss their plans of attack, since Gordon spoke but little French and the Goum no Italian. These two officers seemed to form an immediate liking for each other, and to get along very well. Later that evening all the Goums and our men were waiting near the railroad station for the signal to depart. Clipet told me that Gordon and his group would leave at 11 oclock, and I warned Gordon of this. Later Clipet told me that the plan had been changed and the men would leave at 12, and I again warned Gordon. Then Clipet stated they would leave at 12.15, and I told Gordon not to go until Clipet and I had personally come to him with the officers whom he Gordon agreed. At 12.15 Clipet and I went to find Gordon and were told that he had left at 11.30 with the English-speaking Clipet became furious of this, and made remarks about the unreliability of the Americans. It seems that the Gourn lieutenant with whom Gordon went was to lead a front echelon of Goums. The group which Gordon was supposed to accompany would have taken a rear position. This is why Gordon and his group found themselves later in the very front line of attack instead of in the rear where they should have been. cannot, after very careful thought, lay the responsibility for this mistake to any one source or person. General confusion of Clipet's frequent changes of orders, and linguistic difficulties, all played their part. I myself am partly to blame for having introduced Gordon to the Goum lieutenant, but when I did this I did not know that this Thes man went with the advance Goums to the outskirts of Barqueta passing round Ponte Alban completely. Other Goums wiped out a machine gun nest, killing, wounding and capturing the Germans in it. At Barqueta our men took up a position in the ditch alongside the road. However, they were soon subjected to heavy and constant mortar fire which killed Marcelli and wounded Grasso, and forced the group to change their position to the top of the hill. Lieut. Gordon however, stayed down below, and when German vehicles started to come through, he stood out in the road by himself with two plastic grenades, destroying two vehicles, one of which was either a tank or armoured car, and the other Capt. Then of the Goums who witnessed this deed of valour, stated that it was one of the bravest acts he had ever seen, and in his opinion Gordon was wounded by the back blast from his own bombs. When our survivers returned I requested Capt. Piteri to send some others back to recover the wounded and if possible the dead. He did so, and between the OGs and the patriots attached to us, we kept a constant watch over the area for four days. However, the area in which the men lay was under constant mortar fire, and the bodies were not recevered until a week later. Then Marcelli's and Gordon's bodies were found, but Grasso was still missing. According to the men Grasso was only wounded in the arm, and had been given sulfa nilamide tablets, and had had his arm bandaged. Unfortunately, none of the boys had any water in their canteens, so Grasso had to swallow the pills dry.

After three days at Porto Nuovo the Goums decided to move north to the San Florent region, and we consequently shifted camp to Casta. I remained there with Major Gillies for two nights, but the relationship with Clipet became so difficult that I went to General Henri Martin and requested that I be allowed to join some other unit. He replied: "Certainly, you must remain with the Goums with whom your men so gallantly fought, and with whom they have already become so well acquainted." When the Goums therefore went to St. Florent, we moved our headquarters also, while the Generals, Major Gillies and Commandant Clipet remained at Casta. At St. Florent I made a reconnaissance of the German positions on the Tighime Pass and saw the Germans standing nonchalantly on the roofs of the houses in the pass which Italian artillery was pretending to be shelling. The Germans, it appeared, well knew that the Italians had no intention of hitting them. At St. Florent we spent two uncomfortable nights crouching in the doorway of our quarters while the Germans shelled the town with 88s. However, these shells did little damage. While at St. Florent an amusing incident occurred which will serve to illustrate the uselessness of the Italians in Corsica. An Italian, captain strolled into the square with anger in his eye demanding the American Major. Several people standing around pointed in my direction. The Captain came up and asked: "Why did you have my arms taken away? I want my arms back". I replied: "What are you talking about?" He said that at Marina de Farinote on Cap Corse several boys with sten Yuns approached his company and demanded that they surrender their arms. He asked them upon whose authority, and they replied: "The orders of the American major", whereupon they gave up their pistols, guns, and so forth. "Why did you give them this order?" I replied that I knew nothing of such an order, whereupon he went round to everyone in the square telling them all about it, including Andre Maurois and Colonel Delatour. Soon the entire population of the square was in roars of laughter.

From St. Florent we sent out three groups, one with the British sergeant Istead and his mine detector to detect and remove mines on the beaches north of Cap Corse. The second group went with the Goums to stop vehicular traffic in the pass of Tighime. This second group was under the command of Lieutenant Russo. The third group, under Lieutenant Giannini, was to go on the road leading north from Barqueta to the small embarkation beaches, to stop vehicular traffic. All three returned without loss. The Giannini group reported that vehicular traffic on the Bastia road had ceased. The Goums took remarkable.

The next day we moved our headquarters to Patrimonio, whence I accompanied Colonel Delatour on a trip to the Pass. We visited the wounded in an emergency hospital halfway up the mountain, and finally arrived at the top in the afternoon, when we joined Major Meric who had installed himself in a rather capacious foxhole overlooking the Pass. While there a pair of Messerschmidts machine-gunned the pass and our post, missing me by a few inches. The Italians who had come once they considered it safe, now fled down the mountain like a flock of grouse, while the Goums stood still and took their losses. Later, after Colonel Delatour and I had returned to Patrimonio, five Stukas divebombed the pass producing numerous casualties amongst both Goums and Italians, and destroyed three or four Italian vehicles.

The next day was the big push to Bastia, and the OGs were supposed to go in with the Goums to remove mines along the way. Hence I brought them forward with a French Tank Company for this purpose. This promised to be a sticky business because Sergeant Istead's mine detector had been ruined by the rain, and there was no other detector in Corsica. We marched down the eastward side of the mountain from the Pass, and came about 10 oclock to a bridge which the Germans had blown up that morning. Here we had to leave our vehicles and proceed on foot. About this time, thirty-two American bombers flew over Bastia helping themselves to German food supplies stored there. The Germans had left before dawn, and had destroyed all their vehicles although the had not destroyed the food. A tanker was burning out in the gasoline went off. When on the outskirts of Bastia, we met an armoured car of Spahis coming from the other direction. They had already entered Bastia from the north and were coming up in our direction to meet us. They turned round and we rode into Bastis with them. The town was in miserable shape, having been bombed at least twice, and near the sea many houses were down and streets were full of craters. The American bombardment had injured if not killed a few Spahis and Goums who had arrived there too soon. As far as we could tell, the Germans had not boobied the town, although they may have left some delayed action mines. When Colonel Delatour arrived, I presented myself to him and asked what he wanted our men to do. He replied: "Nothing, the job is finished. There are no mines to be removed."

Christopher, Le Nen, and last Giusti, and so forth immediately began their work of finding quarters. They found quarters for the OGs in a school and a place for Claude in a house in order to set up his W/T. Having heard that Colonel Livermore was in Ajaccio waiting to relieve me of my command, I got into a car - a German-painted Fiat driven by a Corsican patriot who had stolen it from the Germans, and who at that point entered our employ. I wrote "U.S.A" on the side of this car, and took it over in the name of the American Government, at the same time employing the driver and making arrangements for him to have some semblance of an American uniform. He then drove us to Saint Florent by the long road round Cap Corse. This journey however, was subjected to frequent interruptions since at every village we were met by large crowds of civilians waving home-made flags of the United States, Great Britain and France, and offering us wine. at St. Florent at 7 oclock and I drove the Hotchkiss all night to Ajaccio, arriving there in the morning of Tuesday, October 5th, where I was relieved by Colonel Livermore. I took the plane for Algiers at 3.20 and spending the night at Phillipville, arrived in Algiers Wednesday morning, October 6th, 1943.

CONCLUSIONS

Several lessons were learned the hard way through this expedition:

Before sending a group into the field, the Commanding Officer and the wireless operators should know clearly what the intentions are for wireless communication. Adequate staff should be provided and adequate schedules should be arranged.

No one should be permitted to condense orders or messages handed in by the Commanding Officer, nor should any messages be sent without his knowledge either at the time of sending or subsequently.

All messages should be recorded. Radio operators should not be allowed to burn messages without the consent of the Commanding Officer.

Personnel should be properly equipped for any emergency. Our men were sent without a change of clothing, without mess tins, and without the ordinary necessities, so that many of them caught cold and complained of rheumatism after sleeping on the ground.

Officers in charge should be taught how to place their camps, how to have latrines dug, how to camouflage vehicles, and so forth. A complete ignorance of these fundamental factors of living in the field was displayed.

The officers should be taught to keep their men and equipment together, and not scatter men and material all over the countryside.

Officers in command should take the responsibility for the care of their men, and of food and transport and so forth, so that the Commanding Officer is not obliged to keep reminding them to dig latrines, to get blankets, etc. I spent a large portion of my time doing what should have been a sergeant's work.

Operational group officers should not expect to find Waldorf Astoria conditions in every hamlet and village in primitive countries. They should not complain of their quarters having a slightly musty odour, or of other unfavourable conditions which they encounter.

In any patriot movement in any country in South or South eastern Europe, or elsewhere, people adequately trained in the mentality and culture of these areas, should be employed for liaison purposes. Men like Commandant Clipet should never be so employed.

Far from the great victory which the occupation of Corsica has been painted in the papers, it was largely an act of occupying territory which the Germans did not want. The Germans could have taken Ajaccio at any time had they so pleased. Strategically, their desire seemed to be to evacuate Sardinia through the eastern coast road of Corsica, and through the port of Bastia. This was accomplished with negligible loss of life in Corsica. They left as early if not actually when they wanted to leave, and the French moved in afterwards.

The Goums and our boys fought very gallantly and stood in great contrast to the behaviour of the Italians. The Italians can be counted on for two things: one, to delay our action and hamper us by blowing up bridges in front of our vehicles: two, by putting up road blocks in the way so that our trucks and trailers could not get through with the equipment needed to provide anti-aircraft protection for such

The Italians can provide us with excellent transport and skilled mechanics. They had adequate equipment, adequate supplies, and many skilled workers, but are completely unfit for fighting of any kind.

In my opinion, the French Forces are not competent to handle the invasion of Southern France by themselves if we are to judge by their performance in Corsica. They fought gallantly and well, but they have not enough equipment, they do not know how to handle or take care of equipment. They are very poor in matters of transport, and supplies, and there are not enough of them.

Men like Colonel Delatour and the Goums cannot be surpassed in the world for bravery, but there are not enough of them to match even the retreating tail-end of the Wehrmacht. American and British troops are needed for this job. If we had had American and British troops in Corsica we might have caught some of the Germans, instead of simply annoying them on their way out.

ADDENDUM

Lieutenant Harris has a calendar of our day-by-day activities in the Corsican campaign. This should be added to the present report as a supplement.

Other supplements should include Mr. Ffoulke's report on the patriot situation in the Zonza area, and my report on the Italian shelling of American "Fortresses" at Ponte Lecche; all of these documents are still in Corsica.

MAJOR CARL COCN'S MISSION TO CORSICA September - 1943

SI SECTION ACTIVITIES

During the night of September 13th the French submarine "CASASIANCA" and two destroyers, "FANTASQUE" and "TEPRIBLE" landed a French Shoc battalion 450 men strong in the harbour of the city of Ajaccio. General Martin was in command of the expedition and had two staff officers, Col. Deleuse and Major Gambiese. General Mollard, the proposed Military Governor of Corsica, and Major Clepet, the representative of the French" Peme Bureau", were also part of the expedition. The accompanying American mission was under the command of Major Carl Coon and consisted of Lt. Harris in command of the SO section and Mr. Ffoulke in command of the SI section, which in turn consisted of the following agents: Captain Christopher, Charles and the W/T operator Felix.

The situation on the morning of September 14th was as follows:

OSS Headquarters were located in the "Annex de l'hotel des Etrangers" at Ajaccio where the radio sending station was also installed (communication with Algiers was only arranged a few days later). On the morning of the 14th

An interview with General Martin disclosed the fact that he was very much worried about the existing military situation. Through him it was learned that in the immediate vicinity of Ajaccio, where the landings had taken place, the occupying Italian forces had retained an attitude of expectation. It was of course impossible to think of disarming these forces as they had an overwhelming superiority in armament and men (a total of 80,000 men stationed on the Island). It was believed that approximately 10,000 Germans were also stationed up and down the Bast coast between Bastia and Bonifaccio. The General explained that his staff was especially werried by rumors stating that the Germans were starting a drive on Ajaccio through Sartene and Ponte-Leccia.

As no organization existed at that time which was capable of obtaining the necessary information, General Martin left it to Major Coon to create such a service. This work was handed down to the SI Section of the Coon Mission.

The then existing uncertainty in Ajaccio made immediate action necessary. Due to lack of information the Shoc Battalion was at a standstill. The plans of the enemy had to be ascertained as soon as possible as fantastic and extravagant rumors were originating from Bastia and the exact positions of the Italians in that sector were not clearly defined.

Realizing that these rumors might be fact I decided to take advantage of the generally confused situation and set up throughout Corsica on intelligence network which would be directly connected with Ajaccio. If later the enemy were to occupy the whole of the Island, we could then establish our W/T operator in the immediate vicinity of Ajaccio and, leaving one agent in the city itself to coordinate intelligence received, sail out of Corsica.

Two agents, Captain Christopher and Charles, had received thorough training in our Algiers organisation and were at the disposal of the Mission. As the Captain was exceptionally well acquainted with the Bastia region, I decided to put him in charge of our first operation, hereafter known as the "Christopher Mission."

CHRISTOPHER MISSION

An experienced chauffeur was recruited to act as driver for Capt. Christopher. His task consisted in taking the Captain as near Bastia as possible and then acting as liaison with Ajaccio. The Captain would finish his trip on foot and enter the city over the mountains. Inside occupied Bastia Christopher would keep in touch with Sauveur (the driver) by means of a courier service which he proposed to organize. The necessary identification documents were prepared in Ajaccio by our services and on the evening of the 14th of September the Christopher mission left the city. They could go no further than Saint-Florent, a town some six miles outside of Bastia. The car was hidden near the entrance of the village and the Captain managed to get through the enemy lines during the night.

As foreseen, immediately upon his arrival the Captain was able to get in touch with a Gendarmerie Captain, an old friend, who was charged by the occupying German forces with the responsibility of maintaining civil order. This contact proved to be one of our best sources of information on the Bastia region. The first message from the Christopher Mission was brought to us by Sauveur on the morning of September 16th at Ajaccio.

SECRET ( \,032-622

The lisison thus organized was carried on until the last days of the carmeign. When on Spetember 30th headquarters were moved up to casta, a village some kilometres south of Saint-Florent on the Ajaccio Saint-Florent road, the presence of one of our agent and an intelligence network in Bastia became

The Bombardment of Bastia, the port, the city and the landing ground at all the more important. Borgo were organized on the basis of the information gathered by the Christopher Mission.

Leaving Christopher in Bastia, consideration was given to the South-PIETRI MISSION eastern part of the Island. According to rumors, the region of Zonza was more or less under the control of a certain Major Pietri , a well known resistance leader. We were told this officer had been directing the fight egainst the occupents since the first days of their arrival.

On September 16th I decided to get in touch with Major Pietri in order to coordinate his organization with an information network throughout the Southern portion of Corsica. Major Coon remained in Ajaccio to maintain liaison with the French Staff, to receive all reports and to supervise the establishment of a radio contact with Algiers with which we were having great

Accompanied by Lt. Harris and Charles we left Ajaccio in one of our difficulties. cars on the morning of September 16th. As a German patrol was reported in the area we were proceeded by a car of armed patriots. After having escaped contact with the enemy, the village of Levie was reached at 1100 at the moment when a German attack was in full swing. This village, on the crossing of the road leading from Ajaccic to Porto-Vecchio, was seemingly of great strategic interest to the enemy. A party of seven armoured cars and four trucks of motorized infantry leading out of the baccino tunnel had just begun the attack on Levie. The town was held by the Partisans of Major Pietri and Lt.

De Perretti. The attack lasted an hour but the enemy were unable to make any advance. The patriots retained their positions after having inflicted heavy losses on the attacking elements. The remaining Germans then fell back on Porto-Vecchio, destroying in their retreat the bridges of Funicolli and the entrance to the Baccino tunnel.

We soon realized that Major Pietri's group of partisans, consisting of approximately 50 men, was the most representative group in the district. His Headquarters were located at San-Gavino, a village some kilometres north of Levie. Due to its strategic position this town immediately appeared to us to be an excellent spot from which to direct our agents to the South and Southeast.

After negociations with Major Retri, he agreed to place his entire group at our disposal and from then on it was used as a "pool" from which agents were picked for work in the South. The methods of organizing an intelligence network, the type of information desired and the important points on which to focus were explained at length to Major Pietri.

On the evening of the 16th it was decided to send out two agents at once. The first, Docteur Rocca-Serra, was sent to occupied Porto-Vecchio as his father was mayor of the town. The second, adjudant Pietri, was dispatched to the Solenzarra region with which he was very familiar. Two were sent to Ospedale where they alternated in keeping a day and night watch from this exceptionally good position overlooking the entire Parts-Tecchio may. The may was used extensively by the Germans for their maritime traffic between Sardinia and Corsica. On September 17th a liaison between the Pietri Mission and our neadquarters in Ajaccio was established. For this purpose we recruited a motorcycle agent.

MISSION TO BONIFACCIO

One of the most important questions on which the Ajaccio staff wented an answer was whether the German high command invended to evacuate Corsica. Getting an answer to this question was, therefore, a first priority. We already knew that the Germans were evacuating Sardinia as the traffic between this Island and Porto-Vecchio was increasing steadily. This question was closely connected with Captain Christopher's mission to Bastia. At that time the German Staff was located in the town of Bonifaccio, situated at the most southern tip of the Island. This port was also used for the evacuation of Sardinia. Captain Cristopher's first report indicated that German troops had embarqued at Pastia that day by boat with their destination Genoa. Revertheless, we thought it would be interesting to obtain from the German staff in Bonifaccio a confirmation of this report.

The daring method on the part of the executer was simple as far the planning of the operation was concerned. As Major Pietri, a Grand Officer of the legion of Honour which he won in the last World War, was well known to the Germans as ruthless anti-Italian Corsican patriot, we asked him to send an ultimatum to the German forces occupying the town of Bonifaccio demanding their surrender. This note was written by Major Pietri and signed by him.

On the night of the 17th Major Pietri sent a special messenger with his note to the German staff in Bonifaccio. When we bid him goodby we had little hope of seeing him return. As we knew it would take at least three days for our messenger to get there and back, we decided to return to Ajaccio. Five days later our man returned bringing with him a note from the German staff. It was addressed to Major Pietri personally and read as follows: "The German troops in Corsica have received strict orders: they must keep out of incidents and must repulse any attack with all means at their disposal. Signed: Gen. Guswel."

This answer gave away German plans as far as Corsica was concerned and the letter was immediately rushed to General Martin in Ajaccio.

This report merely intends to broadly stress the organization of our intelligence service in Corsica. I have not mentioned all of the individual operations which took place from the North to the South and up and down the West coast of the Island. Our Headquarters were later moved from Ajaccio to Ponte-Muovo and then to Casta and Saint-Florent. In this period our men were able daily to infiltrate through enemy lines and return. Many courageous acts were performed such as Lt. Pietri's of l'Ospedale who entered the German occupied town of Porto-Vecchip and brought four non-Fascist Italian aviation officers for one gold Louis a piece out of an Italian Fascist prisoner's camp. These men gave us valuable information on German movements and material.

Further, this report must not be considered complete as far as the envire mission is concerned as it deals solely with SI activities on the Island. It should be considered as a complement to Major Coon's report on OSS activities in Corsica.

- 2. Over and above the call of duty, and at great personal risk, between May 22, 1942 and October 6, 1943, Major Coon displayed extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against the enemy. Major Coon, in the role of Special Assistant to the American Legation, Tangier, travelled over most of Morocco, often in civilian clothes, including both the French and Spanish Zones, at the risk of his life from the Gostapo and other enemy agencies then operating overtly under the German Armistice Commission in Casablanca and the German Legation in Tangier. His duties were to enlist the services of large native organizations in Spanish Morocco for the following purposes: to create a revolution in that territory in case the Spanish Army should move against the flank of the American invasion forces landing on November 8th, 1942, or in case the Spaniands should attempt to close the Straits of Gibraltar to allied shipping; to attack the Germans should their forces move southward from France across Spain to menace the Allied landing forces. This was a political operation of great delicacy and security value; it would have resulted in death should Major Coon have been caught.
  - 3. During the same period he acted as courier between Gibraltar, Tangier and French Morocco, smuggling firearms, explosives, hand grenades, flares, and other incriminating material to the French resistance groups in the invasion ports for their use on D-Day. During the same period he also collected military intelligence from native sources, which he transmitted to Washington, and which were of great value to our forces in planning the details of the North African landings.
    - 4. In January and February of 1943 Major Coon was engaged in an operation in Tunisia known as the Brandon Mission, in conjunction with members of the British Army Special Operations Executive. withing mittle tetriber to 1960, the date of the Yell of Beating and

He saw action at Cap Serrat, where a small picked garrison of thirty to fifty men, of which he was a member, held the whole northern flank of the Allied line in Tunisia during a critical period.

This group, opposed by between four and six hundred of the enemy in mountainous forested country, held twenty-eight miles of territory between Sedjenane and the sea. Major Coon's personal activities during this period including winning over the native population to the allied cause, whereas before most of them had been hostile; in going alone on nightly expeditions in no-man's land to set booby traps and signal devices, to assure the safety of the garrison; in training, equipping, and dispatching two Arab agents with explosives sewn in their packsaddle to blow up a trainload of German troops between Tindja and Ferryville, which operation was successful.

As a result of these and other activities the local population was of active help in giving intelligence about the enemy, and in serving as guides; the enemy was held off until the critical period had passed; and a train containing several hundred German troops was destroyed.

In February, Major Coon was relieved from Cap Serrat and sent to Kassarine to perform similar services there, particularly in reference to the Arabs; he arrived just in time to participate in the battle of Kassarine Pass which began on February 12, 1943.

During these operations Major Coon suffered severe concussion and injuries to his nervous system when a building, into which he had gone after being machine-gunned by enemy aircraft, was divebombed and collapsed.

- 5. While recovering from these severe injuries Major Coon was attached to the Fifth Army in Oujda, where under Colonel (now General) Edgar Howard, Assistant Chief of Staff G-2, Major Coon was made responsible for the defense of the Fifth Army territory against enemy saboteurs and intelligence agents coming from Spanish Morocco. Through his knowledge of local native peoples and their languages he and the men associated with him were able to prevent any single destructive act from being accomplished. When he left Oujda on May 8, 1943, after three months of service, Major Coon was given a letter of commendation signed by General Howard, a copy of which is attached.
  - 6. On September 13, 1943, Major Coon landed with the first French assault wave on Corsica. This wave, under the command of General Henri Martin, included some forty American special personnel under Major Coon's command. Under his direction these American officers and men carried out continual combat and intelligence activities until October 6, 1943, the date of the fall of Bastia and the final German evacuation from the island. Throughout this period Major Coon remained in a forward combat position with his men and personally directed their activities. Notable results of his mission were: combat, in association with the Moroccan Goums, at Barqueta, Monte Alban, and Tighime Pass; the infiltration of an agent into Bastia, who produced daily intelligence reports which Major Coon transmitted to AFHq. Algiers and which resulted in a number of bombing missions from Algiers. These bombing missions on Bastia, the Borgo airport, and German ships and aircraft engaged in evacuating personnel and materiel from Corsica to Italy, resulted in the loss of several thousand enemy lives, and hundreds of enemy vehicles, including armor. On one mission alone seven enemy ships, including one laden with munitions, were destroyed in Bastia Harbor. Major Coon was thus responsible for obtaining the only tactical intelligence from Corsica which was used in large scale operations, and this intelligence had much to do with the success of the Corsican campaign.

- 7. After these operations and as their direct result, Major Goon was physically incapacitated, evacuated to the United States, and retired from the Army on January 12, 1945.
- 8. This recommendation is based on the personal knowledge of the undersigned officer, and from official reports on file in the Office of Strategic Services.
- 9. All of Major Coon's service since these acts has been honorable.
- 10. Major Coon's present address is 6 Whittemore Terrace, Wakefield, Massachusetts.
  - 11. Major Coon entered the army from Washington, D.C.
- 12. This recommendation has been held in abeyance until this time in order that there be no possibility of compromise of the security of comparable activities being carried on in other areas.

MAJOR CARLETON S. COON

From May 1942 to November 42, Major Carleton S. Goon in the role of Special Assistant at the U. S. Legation at Tangier was occupied in enlisting the services of various native organizations in Spanish Morocco. This was an extremely delicate operation, and he acted at great personal risk to his life. The object was to create a revolution in that territory in the event the Spanish should move against the U. S. Torch Forces, or the Germans should move against us through Spain.

Major Coon also smuggled grenades, and other arms into French Morocco for the use of resistance groups.

In January, February 1945, he was engaged in the Brandon Operation with members of British SOE at Cap Serrat and the Kasserine Pass. During these operations a small picked group, of which he was a member, covered an extraordinary length of front under combat conditions at the imminent risk of being captured or wiped out, thus convincing the Germans it was held in force.

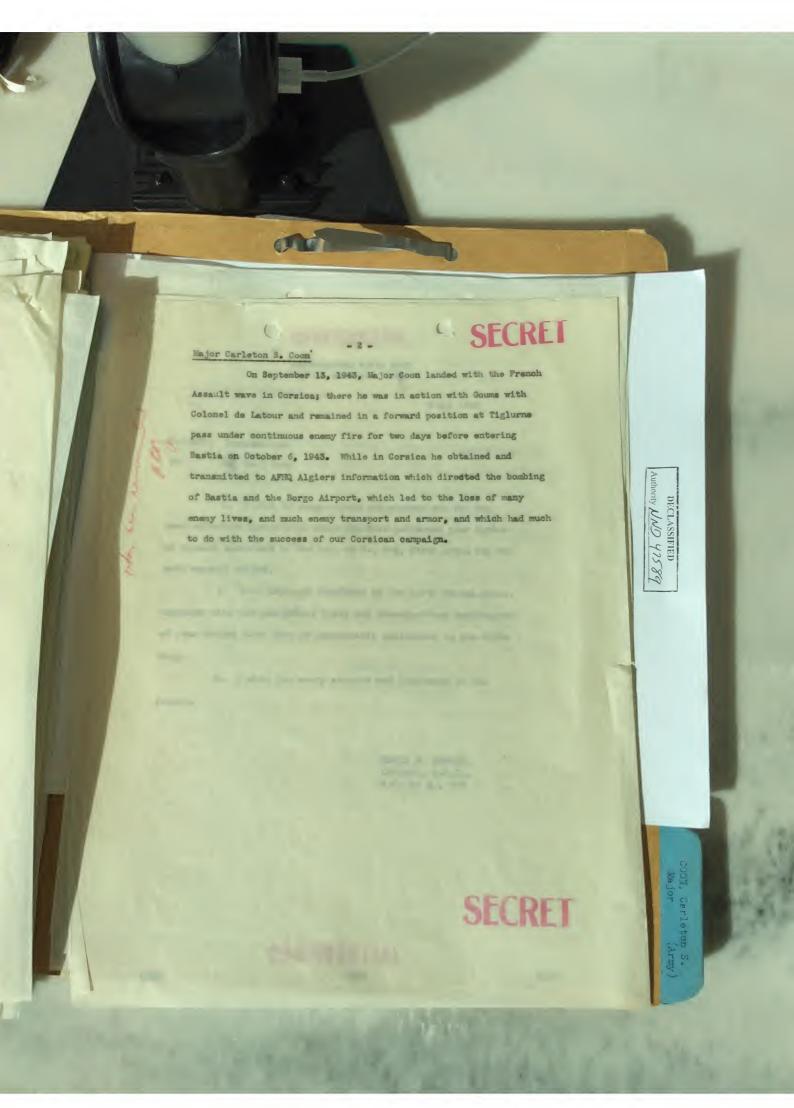

Major Coon during this period trained two Arabs and sent them through the enemy lines to blow up a train full of German troops between Tindja and Ferryville. This operation was successfully carried out and the Arabs returned.

During these operations, Major Coon suffered concussion and injuries to his head when a building into which he had gone after the aerial machine-gunning was dive-bombed.

Since I em being discharged from the army, it is the wish of those in charge of this project to keep me on it until it is nearly or finally completed. It is my intention to return to my duties at Harvard University in March, 1945. The present application covers the period between my putative discharge from the army and that date.

Since my job does not come under any formal civil service category, and since I am already doing it to the satisfaction of my employers, there seems no need for a special examination.
